Abstract

An archery bow component includes a preform having a plurality of fiber tows braided to each other. A polymeric material is applied to the preform. The polymeric material coats the plurality of fiber tows during molding of the preform. The dispersal of the polymeric material throughout the preform is effected by the braiding of the plurality of fiber tows to each other.